

Newington Parish Council Freedom of Information Act Procedure

Introduction & Scope

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOI) gives rights of public access to information held by public authorities.

- public authorities are obliged to publish certain information about their activities; and
- members of the public are entitled to request information from public authorities

The Act covers all recorded information held by a public authority. It is not limited to official documents and it covers, for example, drafts, emails, notes, recordings of telephone conversations and CCTV recordings. Nor is it limited to information created by Newington Parish Council (NPC), so it also covers, for example, letters received from members of the public, although there may be a good reason not to release these (see Appendix 2).

A FOI request is not the same as responding to enquiries/questions raised in association with the ordinary business of NPC.

Responsibilities

All Councillors and Clerks are responsible for identifying FOI Requests. Requests may not always be clearly marked "FOI" by the public.

All Councillors and Clerks should forward FOI Requests to the Parish Clerk.

The Parish Clerk will record the FOI Request and acknowledge receipt, providing a schedule for the 20 day rule and issue a Fees Notice where necessary (see below).

The Parish Clerk will co-ordinate information gathering where that information is not available on the internet.

The Parish Clerk, after liaising with the Chair, will notify the requester and any other Public Body if the request is passed to another Authority.

The Chair of the Council will release all FOI Responses prior to the Parish Clerk sending a response where that information is not readily available on the internet.

Principles of the FOI Act

1. Section 10 of the Act sets out the time frames within which a public authority must respond to an FOIA request. It applies whenever the public authority has:
  - a duty under section 1(1)(a) to confirm or deny whether the information is held;

- a duty under section 1(1)(b) to provide information that is held to the requester;
  - a duty under section 17 to issue a refusal notice explaining why a request has been refused.
- a) NPC must respond to requests promptly and by the twentieth working day, starting the working day after the Request has been received.
- A working day is any day other than a Saturday, Sunday, or a day which is a bank holiday.
- b) If the authority needs further details to identify or locate the information, then the 20 working days will commence the day after it receives the required clarification from the requester.
- c) Where required, NPC may claim a reasonable extension of time to consider the public interest test. However, this must not extend beyond an additional 20 working days.
2. Where the authority requires a fee to process the request, the 'clock' will stop on the date the Parish Clerk issues a Fees Notice to the requester and restart once payment is received.
- Under section 10(2) the period starting from the day the Fees Notice is given and ending on the day the payment is received can be disregarded from any calculation of the 20 working day time limit.
  - The Information Commissioner's interpretation of the wording 'the day on which the fees notice is given' is the date on which the notice is sent to the requester.
  - NPC should therefore pause the 20 working day clock on the day it issues the Fees Notice. The clock will restart again the day after the fee is received.
  - If the requester elects to pay by cheque then the clock will only restart once this has cleared.
  - Should the requester fail to provide the fee within 3 months of the fees notice being issued, then under section 9(2) of the Act, the authority will no longer obliged to comply with the request.
3. If NPC is transferring the request because it does not hold the information itself but believes it to be held by another public authority, NPC must inform the requester that the information is not held within the 20 working day limit.
4. Section 10(3) enables an authority to extend the 20 working day limit up to a 'reasonable' time in any case where it requires more time to determine whether or not the balance of the public interest lies in maintaining an exemption; or it needs further time to consider whether it would be in the public interest to confirm or deny whether the information is held.

- This extension will only apply to requests where the authority considers a ‘qualified exemption’ (an exemption that is subject to a public interest test) to be engaged. The Act does not define what might constitute a ‘reasonable’ extension of time. The view is that an authority should take no more than an additional 20 working days to consider the public interest, meaning that the total time spent dealing with the request should not exceed 40 working days.

Refusing a FOI Request

NPC can refuse an entire request under the following circumstances:

- It would cost too much or take too much staff time to deal with the request.
  - The request is vexatious.
  - The request repeats a previous request from the same person.
1. Time Related Refusal(s) the cost limit for complying with a request or a linked series of requests from the same person or group is set at £450 for a Parish Council. There is a cost ceiling when calculating the costs of complying, the aggregate (total) costs of all related requests received within 60 days from the same person or from people who seem to be working together, can be refused.
  2. Vexatious Related Refusal(s) If evaluated as vexatious NPC does not have to comply with any part of the request, or even confirm or deny whether the information is held. When assessing whether a request is vexatious, the Act permits NPC to take into account the context and history of a request, including the identity of the requester and NPC’s previous contact with them. (The requester may appeal to the Information Commissioner’s Office.)

NPC’s decision will be based on whether the request is likely to cause a disproportionate or unjustifiable level of distress, disruption or irritation.

Detailed Guidelines will be referenced as and when necessary, as issued by the Information Commissioner’s Office “Dealing with vexatious requests (section 14) Freedom of Information Act”

How does the Freedom of Information Act affect data protection?

The Data Protection Act 1998 gives rules for handling information about people. It includes the right for people to access their personal data. The Freedom of Information Act and the Data Protection Act come under the heading of information rights and are regulated by the Information Commissioner's Office.

When a person makes a request for their own information, this is a subject access request under the Data Protection Act. However, members of the public often wrongly think it is the Freedom of Information Act that gives them the right to their personal information.

The Data Protection Act exists to protect people's right to privacy, whereas the Freedom of Information Act is about getting rid of unnecessary secrecy. These two aims are not necessarily incompatible but there can be a tension between them and applying them sometimes requires careful judgement.

When someone makes a request for information that includes someone else's personal data, NPC will need to carefully balance the case for transparency and openness under the Freedom of Information Act against the data subject's right to privacy under the Data Protection Act in deciding whether we can release the information without breaching the data protection principles.
